

PowerPoint Basics

Tutorial 5: Navigation

One popular activity in education is multiple choice questions. A PowerPoint presentation, if set up correctly, can offer some interesting, interactive possibilities here.

Here's a flowchart explaining how to go about organizing such a presentation.

The slide with the first question will contain the right answer and some dummy answers. If the right answer is clicked, there's an applause, and the user is taken to the next question/slide.

If the wrong answer is clicked, there's the sound of an explosion, and the user is taken to a new slide with some kind of comment. Clicking on this slide will take the user back to the original question.

For this tutorial you'll have to create a fresh presentation and toggle between this presentation and your new one to follow the instructions.

Go to the next slide in this tutorial.
